

EXPERIMENT No 6

Aim: to re-create winter tea.

Method: Collect the steam, put it back in the fridge. Simultaneously grow a tea tree. Collect the frozen droplets. Stir with a stalactite ^{1/2} made from sugar. Shave the bark from the tea tree, grind the shavings powder the grindings. Add a tot of Pina Colada and do not mix thoroughly at all.

Observation: The teeth of the python have nothing to do with this experiment. A thick smelly paste developoes from the ingredients. Foam appears at the edges. Most people run away.

Conclusion: The experiment is concluded. Winter tea is not a true form of recreation.

Suggestions: i. Re-experience experiment No. 3
ii. Summer Pepsi is also somewhat useful.

EXPERIMENT No.7

Aim: Brontosaurus Coffee.

Method: Relive prehistoric times. Use a club made from a coffee tree. Remain silent whilst imagining a brontosaurus. Sneak twice, then mash the animal's footprints. Add delicious water, simmer for a decade or two. Mix.

Observation: Your memory deceives you, as in experiment No. 2. The decade boils at 504°C quickly. You become allergic to olives and masking tape. Most people become sticky and cannot get out of their cars.

Conclusion: Brontosaurus coffee should still remain banned from every decent, religious and educated home.

Suggestions: i. Improve your life with Triceratops Cola instead.
ii. Use the footprint for a swimming pool instead.
iii. Sneak three times instead of twice.

EXPERIMENT No 8

Power Beer, magnetic and soda.

P.T.O.